PUBLIC WILL INSPECT WHARF

Richmond will hold its great community gathering today. Beginning at 10 o'clock this morning and continuing without interruption until midnight, the city will hold a festival to commemorate the completion of the Parr-Richmond terminal and to dedicate that structure to public use.

Under the joint direction of the chamber of commerce, the municipality of Richmond and Fred D. Parr of the terminal corporation, the celebration will be the most elaborate ever held in Richmond, and plans are made to entertain at least 4000 visitors.

Auto Exhibit
Included in the program will be Richmond's most elaborate automobile sale held at the terminal, with the 12 Richmond dealers exhibiting the latest types of cars.

The parade planned for 2:30 in the afternoon is expected to be the most pretentious procession that ever moved through the streets of the city. It will start from Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue and proceed down Macdonald and over to Point Richmond, thence back to Cutting boulevard and as far as Tenth where it will turn south to the inner harbor. Signs have

LINEUP FOR BIG PARADE

The harbor day parade today promises to be one of the largest ever held in this city, according to Police Chief J. Daniel Cox, chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

The parade will leave Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue promptly at 2:30 o'clock according to Chief Cox. The line of march is down Macdonald avenue to Garfield boulevard; from Garfield to Standard avenue; thence to Washington avenue; thence to Richmond avenue and then down Cutting boulevard to Tenth street where the parade will turn and go down to the new wharves on the inner harbor.

A partial lineup for the parade was announced yesterday. It is expected that numerous other organizations will participate.

Two Building Permits Issued

Two building permits were issued yesterday in the office of A. J. Hurley, city building inspector. J. F. Gray was issued a permit for a front porch addition to a house on Downer avenue between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. G. V. McCausland is the contractor for the work which will cost $600.

Dr. LeBell is erecting a galvanized iron canopy over a loading shed on Macdonald avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets. The work to cost $50, will be done by Walter Black.

Local Men Speak At Scout School

T. J. Gray, president of the county court of honor board and J. B. Corrie, chairman of the Rotary youth committee of Richmond were the speakers last night at the Scout leaders' training course held in Concord.

Gray spoke on Scout laws while Corrie told of the work of the Scout committee.

FACILITY FOR INNER HARBOR MOST MODERN SHIPPING AID

Thousands of Richmond citizens who have never seen the development on their own inner harbor will today inspect the great new shipping facility which has been erected there—the Parr-Richmond terminal.

They will make their inspection in connection with the dedication program to be held there all day today.

The new terminal is the last word in shipping facilities and is the newest of the shipping terminals on San Francisco bay. It equals the best in construction and equipment, and in size is among the largest in California.

The terminal is 900 feet long over all, with 800 feet of covered cargo compartment space. This is divided into two compartments each 400 feet long and 200 feet wide. Between the two is a three-story concrete walk, making two distinct and complete units which can be operated separately or together.

Fire Protection
Under the arrangement, oil, gasoline and other highly inflammable articles may be handled or stored in one shed while the other is used for perishable products which would be damaged by any fire that might originate from such shipments as oils. The plan makes it possible to handle both kinds of cargo at the same time without any material increase in the insurance rate. As an added protection against fire there is an overhead sprinkling system which turns on automatically in case of a blaze.

Other precautions against damage by fire are seen in the type of construction, which is all of steel and concrete save for the roof which is of redwood, slow burning and fire resistant.

The terminal stands facing the inner harbor channel, 32 feet

AUTO DEALERS TO SHOW CARS

An exhibition of more than 100 new model cars will be presented today by 13 Richmond dealers, on the new inner harbor terminal. The show, which is heralded as one of the most complete of its kind, has obtained the latest articles in automobile development.

New car models will be exhibited on the floor of the north terminal unit, where each dealer's exhibit will occupy 1200 square feet of floor space, in a space allotment of 40 feet frontage and 30 feet in depth. The center of the big terminal will be kept free for the speakers' platform, a bandstand and room for the public to dance.

To install color to the show, some motorboat models may be added. Arrangements were being considered yesterday to have a new Cord front wheel drive on exhibit.

Six new Oakland and Pontiac cars will be shown by J. P. Strom, president of the Richmond Motor Car Dealers' association, all of which are the latest to arrive from the factory.

A new shipment of Chryslers has arrived, which will be shown by Harry Curry, of the Chrysler agency.

According to L. G. Mitchell, the Richmond Durant agency will probably have a large number of new models to offer.

Roy K. Dorr, local Nash dealer has announced that all the new Nash models on the floor at Bessel avenue and Eleventh street will be transferred to the dock display rooms.

David Rose, local agent for the Ford, will have a number of the

FIRST OF TRIO GETS DEATH SENTENCE

LAMAR, Colo., Oct. 12.—UP—George J. Abshier, bespectacled, mild mannered member of the Pleagle bandit gang which robbed the First National bank here of $210,000, and killed four persons on May 23, 1928, must hang for his part in the crime a jury in district court decided here tonight.

Abshier is the first of three confessed bandits to be tried for their murder of A. Newton Parrish, president of the bank. Abshier denied having fired the shot. He said Jake Fleagle, fugitive member of the band killed the banker.

Both President Parrish and his son, J. F. Parrish, cashier, were killed during the battle in the bank. E. A. Kessinger, teller, was kidnapped to provide a shield for the fleeing robbers and after he had served his purpose was killed.

JAKE FLEAGLE

THOUGHT IN KANSAS

DODGE CITY, KAN., Oct. 12 (UP)—Jake Fleagle, alleged member of the gang which robbed the Lamar, Colo., bank and shot their way to freedom today was believed by Kansas authorities to be attempting to cover up other robberies by the gang through intimidating witnesses.

Fleagle has been sought in this state and in California since his asserted accomplices were captured and his brother confessed. The others are now on trial in Lamar, Colo.

The belief that Jake is in Kansas came from a report from G. E. Welford, of Kinsey, that a man he believed was Fleagle had threatened his life if he told what he knew of the robberies of a Kinsey bank two years ago.

Officers here said they had other reports indicating Jake Fleagle recently was in the state.

MOTOR BOAT RACES TODAY

The outboard motor boat races at the harbor celebration this afternoon will be for official records, having been officially sanctioned by the northern California Outboard Racing association. The races will take place at the new inner harbor celebration between four and six o'clock.

The Outboard association will have full charge of the program, assisted by the Berkeley Outboard club.

The crowd will be able to get a good view of the entire affair, as the races will start at the north end of the terminal and will end there. A ramp to the water's edge at the south end of the terminal for getting the boats into the bay, has been erected by Nobby Marshall.

The first event will consist of three heats for runabouts, best two out of three, for a silver cup and cash prizes for the winner and runner-up.

The second event for class 'C' step planes will be three, four mile events, for first and second cash prizes.

Several exhibit boats will be in the water for spectators to examine of their wish.

Church Council Meeting Delayed

The session of the Richmond Church Educational Council, scheduled to be held last night, was postponed until next Friday night. The session will be held at the St. Edmund's Episcopal church under the direction of E. George Harlow.

STANDARD TO USE OIL LINE IN RACE FOR NATURAL GAS

MARTINEZ, Oct. 11.—It was learned from reliable sources today that Coast Counties Gas & Electric company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil, will have natural gas flowing through mains into the Contra Costa county district within a month.

Speed in transmission will be made possible through utilization of the Standard Oil company's existing pipe lines.

The Richmond to Coalinga oil line was tapped today at Martinez, with the intention of cleaning it in preparation for turning in the natural gas.

May Beat P. G. & E.

Observers here declared that this bit of strategy by the oil company will permit it to precede the P. G. & E. into the district with natural gas since the latter concern would be required to build a line the entire distance from the oil fields to Contra Costa county. This move, it was also pointed out, will definitely place the Standard Oil company in the public utility field.

It was also announced that natural gas will be served to Bay Point residents in the near future, by the Coast Counties corporation.

Extension Material

According to M. W. Gagan, district manager of the Coast Counties, pipe and other materials are being received at various points preparatory to starting on construction of required extensions. Among the materials being received, are supplies for a contemplated extension from Pacheco to Walnut Creek, where Coast Counties and Pacific Gas and Electric company have been battling for a franchise.

Coast Counties, apparently feeling secure in obtaining the Walnut Creek service, is utilizing Concord as a center for assembling of materials for the line and has prepared estimates that indicate a cost of $75,000 for the extension.

City Hall To Close For Harbor Fete

In order to give employees of the city hall an opportunity to attend the harbor day celebration, all city offices will be closed today, according to A. C. Faris, city clerk. The city offices are closed Saturday afternoon of each week, but due to the harbor celebration, the hall will be closed all day today.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—Saturday.—UP—War was virtually declared today by the Nationalist government of Nanking against the Chinese general, Feng Yuxiang, long at odds with the Nationalists.

V. F. W., U. S. W. V. To Enter Parade

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the United Spanish War Veterans are entering a float in the parade to be held at 2:30 this afternoon. It was announced last night.

Members of the V. F. W. and the U. S. W. V. will also march in the parade.

USHERETTE ACCUSES MAGNATE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—UP—Tillie Russo, a pretty usherette, added her bit of testimony against Alexander Pantages today at his trial on a charge of attacking Eunice Pringle when she pulled to him for theatrical booking.

Just before she swooned at the close of court, Miss Russo said that Pantages had told her the day after the asserted attack the story she was to tell.

"He said 'this is your story: The girl came into the balcony of the theater alone and left alone. Three minutes after she left, you heard the screams; stick to the three minute stuff.'"

"Was that the truth?" District Attorney Byron Fitts asked.

In Room Half Hour

"No sir," the girl answered in a trembling voice. "Mr. Pantages showed her to a seat in my section and he came and sat her after a while. It seemed like the screams came a half hour after she left."

A police officer who was attracted to the theater by the screams was another state witness today.

The officer, A. L. Courtney, of the traffic division, was called by the state in the millionaire showman's trial on charges of attacking the 17-year old dancer who wanted stage success.

Demanding Justice

"I went up to the main office of the theater and found Pantages there," Courtney said. "The girl shouted that she wanted justice and Pantages told me: 'I want you to keep this quiet and I want no publicity or newspaper stories.'"

"What did you answer?" Deputy District Attorney James P. Stewart inquired.

"I told him I couldn't help it if the newspapers got it," Courtney said that he had an opportunity to observe the condition of Miss Pringle's clothing and that it was dusty and torn.

The policeman was followed on the stand by Roy Keene, assistant manager of the theater. He testified that after he alleged attack he placed a table in the little room in which it

Realtors Told About Barrier

An address on the bay barrier project was made before the members of the Richmond Realtors board last night at the chamber of commerce rooms. L. E. Mullen, of Martinez, was the speaker and he illustrated his lecture with a graphic chart.

Plans for participation in the harbor day celebration here were made by the board. Realtors will meet at Twenty-fifth street at two o'clock this afternoon to take part in the parade.

William Metz was in charge of the meeting.

Two Killed In Auto Accident

MERCED, Oct. 11.—UP—Mrs. Minnie Lettlinwell, 42, of Livingston and her grand-daughter Marjorie Strong, 3, of Watsonville, were almost instantly killed when an automobile operated by Jack Durham, 17, of Livingston, collided head on with another car operated by J. S. Beckwith of Fresno, on the Golden State highway seven miles north of Merced at 6 o'clock tonight.

SLAYING OF TOT TOLD BY 2 CHILDREN

MILFORD, CONN., Oct. 12 (UP)—Johnnie and Jimmie Mulligan, seven and nine years old, were under lock and key here tonight—confessing slayers of four year old Albert Mikenas, whose body was found last July in a swamp near here.

The confession of the Mulligan boys, inmates of the New Haven county home since their parents separated last year, brought to light one of the strangest killings in the annals of Connecticut crime.

Speaking precisely, as though they were reciting their lessons in school, the two boys today explained how they had been "fascinated" by the four year old boy, whom they had found playing on the beach near Milford.

They dragged him into a clump of bushes and stripped him of his clothing. The child rebelled at the treatment and the two older boys started beating him. They ended by smothering him to death by placing their hands over his mouth and nose.

Motion Picture Star Bankrupt

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—UP—Edna Hibbard, well known New York stage star, who has been appearing in recent productions here, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, federal court records revealed today.

Miss Hibbard owes nearly $16,000 and her husband, Lester Bryant, theatrical producer, also filed a petition showing that he was $70,000 in debt. Nine judgments have been obtained against them. One was said to be for $50,000 in favor of Rose C. S. Ogden, of New York who charged breach of contract. Miss Hibbard admitted she owed grocery bills in Forest Hills, L. I.

Oakland Man In $50,000 Balm Suit

40 PERILED ON STEAMER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Saturday.—UP—The British steamer Pacific was fast around on Frypan shoals, North Carolina, early today with a crew of from 35 to 40 men aboard, and the coast guard cutter Maddox was preparing to go at once to its assistance from its station below Cape Hatteras.

News was picked up by the radio Marine corporation and Mr. Kay radio here and the Tropical Radio at Boston, said the ship appealed for immediate assistance.

The Mackay radio learned later that the Pacific was in touch with the Maddox, and that the cutter was ready to rush to help—11 miles southeast of Cape Fear, N. C.

The message added that there was a heavy sea.

Film Star Sent To State Home

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—UP—Norman Trevor, the dignified appearing screen actor best known for his work in "Beau Geste" and "Sorrell and Son" was ordered confined to the Norwalk state hospital for the insane today.

Trevor recently suffered a complete mental and physical breakdown. His nearest relative, it was indicated at the hearing, is his daughter, Doris Trevor.

The actor first was brought into court last April by his old friend, H. B. Warner, actor. At that time Trevor was paroled to the custody of Officer J. Brown and for a time seemed to grow better, returning to work at a salary of $800 a week. However, his condition grew worse and the parole officer returned him to court.

Bedbury Rites Held Yesterday

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from the Wilson and Kratzler chapel for Mrs. Lusy Ellen Bedbury, pioneer citizen of Richmond. Services were under the direction of Rev. F. H. Prince, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Cremation was held at the Berkeley crematory.

GRAND JURY QUIZ TO BE SOUGHT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11 (UP)—The dissenting faction of Angelus Temple urged the district attorney's office today to investigate the manner in which Aimee Semple McPherson, the world's most famous woman evangelist, has handled the church's finances.

A preliminary survey was started by Daniel Beecher, chief trial deputy of the district attorney's office.

The charges against Mrs. McPherson were made by Rev. John Cohen, discharged assistant pastor of Angelus Temple, and six others, most of them ministers at the temple and branch churches.

According to Beecher, the ministers told him that Mrs. McPherson allegedly converted church funds to her own use. Beecher said that if the preliminary examination warrants, the matter would be taken before the county grand jury.

Records Inspected
Mrs. McPherson's aides were questioned today and photostatic copies of books and records of Angelus Temple, the four square

Plans are now being made for a floor prize and other entertainment features, which will take the place of the prize waltz held last year.

Baseball Star To Claim Bride

KANSAS CITY, MO., Oct. 11 (UP)—A clean hit made by Taylor L. Douthett, St. Louis Cardinals center fielder, in a game two years ago started more than a baseball rally. Miss Anna Jane Shelton, of Kansas City, was in the stands and after Taylor slugged the ball she hadn't much interest in the remaining eight players on the Cardinals team.

Monday Miss Shelton will marry Douthett here. She met him after that thrill she got while a visitor in the St. Louis ball park. The couple obtained a license today. Douthett, a graduate of the University of California, gave his age as 28, and Miss Shelton, a Kansas University alumna, as 27.

To All Wives Who Work

"YOU are always singing the praises of the fifty-fifty wife—
"Meaning, I presume, the wife who earns an income," writes
"Nancy."
"Has it ever occurred to you that not every woman is fit to work in an office or factory?
"Just as not every woman is fit to be a mother?
"There are actually women who believe it or not?
"Who, even in this age, like to putter around the house,
"Changing the furniture around, trying new recipes—all
"that sort of thing.
"Are such women worse wives because they are domestic"ally inclined?
"I am young and far from old-fashioned,
"But I really think that, in most cases, taking care of a
"home and family
"is a full-time job for any woman.
"It is only the exceptional woman who can have a career
"in addition.
"And make a real success of both career and domestic life."
We were glad to get this candid and courteous protest.

Because, without meaning it, we may have been giving too much emphasis to one kind of useful life for a woman.
When of course there are at least TWO kinds.

We do think that, in most cases, taking care of a home and a young family is a full-time job.
It is especially the family that makes it so.

Modern inventions and efficiency methods have made housekeeping itself far simpler, far less time-consuming.

Even if it is used to be, even in our mother's day.
When vacuum cleaners and other electrical devices were undreamed of.
When canned and other ready-made foods were fewer, more expensive, less desirable.

When all the powders and flakes and oils and other aids to easy laundering and cleaning were un-invented.
But, while the advance of knowledge has decreased the work of the housekeeper.

That same advance of knowledge seems to us to have intensified and complicated the work of the mother.

An intelligent and conscientious young woman to-day must spend more time on the physical, mental and moral care of one child.

Than her grandmother considered necessary for bringing up half a dozen.

We have been lucky enough to have as neighbors
Two really splendid modern mothers of young children—
Jackie's mother and the mother of Millred and Marie.

They know all the sensible, scientific modern methods for keeping their youngsters healthy. And they know all the other important things that mothers should know—

How to enforce discipline, without nagging or bullying.
How to answer the most insoluble questions.
How to teach arrange life.
How to be socially minded.

How to work and save and plan for the educational future.
How to be gay and tender and wise and devoted and comradely and youth-fully attractive.

How and when and what to OVER-LOOK!
Certainly these and many other mothers of pre-school or beginning-school boys and girls.

Have a full-time job, of the most admirable and all-demanding sort.
We believe that any woman who, with one pair of hands, one brain, one loving heart.

Not only ministers to the physical needs of husband and young family, but to all their OTHER needs.

As a vitally useful and important person as any career wife.
The reasons why we often take the latter's part are really two:

First, because our family was ready-made and therefore beyond baby-hood.
We could and did find opportunity to cook outside the home, as well as in it.

And, naturally, we applaud a way of life which we have tried and found good.
But the second and more important reason why we defend the fifty-fifty wife—

is that we are not sure that we are not doing her wrong.

which is then allowed to come to a boil. Rarely does the American housewife boil her coffee, although the inexperienced considers steeping synonymous with boiling.

Fresh coffee is the first requisite to a perfect cup of coffee. Experts have found that from the moment it is roasted coffee begins to give off its volatile oils and coffee gas, the source of its taste and aroma. Sixty-five to seventy per cent. of the coffee gas and a large part of the aromatic oils disappear in the first twenty-four hours.

After that the gas is expelled at a slower rate; in ten or twelve days it has all been lost and a great part of the flavor has vanished. The coffee has become noticeably stale.

In these days, vacuum packed, or freshly roasted and ground coffee quickly transferred to airtight glass jars make for fresh coffee. The coffee maker thus starts from scratch.

For five cups of coffee the following proportions of water and grounds are needed for the three methods:

PERCOLATED COFFEE
One cup medium ground coffee
Five cups of boiling water Percolating time: Two to three minutes after bubbling begins.

TRICOLORED COFFEE
One-half cup pulverized coffee
Five cups of boiling water
Drip time: Until water drips through.

STEEPED COFFEE
One cup medium ground coffee
Five cups cold water Steeping time: Until water comes to a boil. A little cold water turned in tends to settle the grounds.

Coffee should be served the moment it is ready. Otherwise the flavor is lost.

The old-fashioned method of steeped
coffee still finds favor with many people. The water is poured on the grounds brought to a boil, or the grounds are enclosed in a tiny sac and
the sac let down into the cold water.

Consider the NANCY DORRIS number of salting percolators presented to blushing brides every year, and the number in use in established American homes, the percolator is the most popular method of coffee brewing. Coffee percolated to the right moment is delicious, while coffee allowed to percolate too long becomes bitter and loses some of its native goodness.

The tri-colored evolved from the old French drip system makes a uniformly good cup of coffee for the early and late breakfasters. By this method, boiling water is poured into the finely ground coffee and goes through them, just once, into the crockery or glass container below the drip section. Before it drips through the sealing water reaches the grounds, extracts coffee and extracts its distinctive aroma and flavor. For those who insist that no metal come in contact with the coffee this system is ideal.

The old-fashioned method of steeped
coffee still finds favor with many people. The water is poured on the grounds brought to a boil, or the grounds are enclosed in a tiny sac and
the sac let down into the cold water.

Waxing the Floor

HOUSEHOLDERS are apt to overdo the waxing of floors. Under ordinary circumstances a floor requires waxing only two or three times a year. Another common mistake is too great liberality in the use of the wax.
This is not only wasteful but harmful to the floor, as the surplus wax forms a soft coating on the surface that collects dust and makes it more apt to be marred.

Make sure the floor needs no re-waxing and if it does, rub it thoroughly with turpentine before applying the wax, using a piece of cheesecloth.

After the floor is waxed keep it in good condition by dusting daily with a broom covered with Canton flannel.
Always keep a can of wax handy and as soon as you notice worn places in the doorways or other parts of the room, apply a thin coat, rubbing it well into the wood. After this has dried for an hour polish the spot thoroughly.

Romantic Story Superior Cast In Masquerade

Although Louis Joseph Vance wrote "The Brass Bowl" many years ago, the story is as delightful as ever; a fact proved by the enthusiastic reception given to its all talking screen version, "Masquerade" yesterday at the Fox-California theater.

This Fox Movietone picture is packed full of romance and adventure, treated in an entertaining manner, and with splendid work on the part of the players and the director, Alan Birmingham distinguishes himself in the difficult dual role of the crook and the millionaire, and Lella Hyams is a dainty and darling heroine.

Farréll Macdonald is immense as the slow witted cop, and Clyde Cook and Arnold Lucy also make their parts prominent. Russell Birdwell has done an excellent job of direction. The picture is an unquestionable hit.

Also on this program is "Our Gang" talking comedy entitled "Railroading" and a Fox Talking News.

That oil spots on the garage floor is a silent warning to the motorist that some place on the car some gasket needs tightening, says L. G. Evans, general service manager, National Automobile club.

The new picture, a sound synchronized production, which will open at the Fox-California theater tomorrow shows all the thrills of the speed classic, including several spectacular accidents as background for a pretty romance between Haines and Anita Page. A thrilling airplane ride, with dare devil stunts and a sensational parachute jump, add to the thrills. Harry Beaumont directed the new play from a story by Byron Morgan, and Ernest Torrence, Karl Dane, John Miljan, Polly Moran, and Eugenie Besserer, and others of note are in the cast as well as famous race drivers.

Also on this bill is the third chapter of the talking serial "King of the Kongo" and a Fox News.

Plant and Cochrane were riding together in the former's automobile. A. J. Wimberly drove up in another car. Two years ago Plant had been charged with attacking Wimberly's daughter. The affair still rankled. When the cars met guns were drawn and a quick succession of shots followed.

With the prospects of winning the Eastbay Junior Soccer league title in sight, the Richmond soccer club team will go up against the Scandinavians at San Pablo park, Berkeley, tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.

On the following Sunday the local boys will play the Ibericos here at Nicholl park at 12:30.

The members of the Richmond team will leave the Longfellow high school at 11:30 to tomorrow morning.

Officials of the league last Tuesday night requested that the local team enter the senior division of the league. This offer was refused, however, as the management of the club feels that the boys would be playing out of their class.

It might be for some, but we doubt if the seasoned fan will find it troublesome.

SYNOPSIS
Joe Lane, ex-convict and star singer of ORCA Radio Station, discovers that Arthur Phillips, his manager and best friend, is trying to take Katherine, his wife, away from him. Becoming enraged he kills Phillips, and, falling in love, the manager strikes his head and dies. Joe is being tried for murder. The case goes well for him until Little Pal, the Lane's four year old child, suddenly remarks that his "daddy was going to kill the man," thus establishing premeditation of murder. Joe gets a one year sentence on a manslaughter charge. In prison, during recreation hour, Joe is entertaining the men with a song he has written.

"Hopes and dreams are things that life can shatter. Learn to lift your head and say: 'It doesn't matter.' Birds sing in cages, too. . . . They know that the thing to do. Little birds can do it. . . . Why can't you?"

Quaveringly the harmonica carried Joe's voice along as it swept to the end. No one said much. One or two muttered curses, of course. Men dare not give way to their emotions, even a little bit, when they are in prison. But Joe understood all that. They simply returned the white sheets of paper and read his wife's letter to the man who was always waiting for one that never arrived. It wasn't a very important letter. It just said the things that a brave heart pours out to a loved one. The prisoner listened, his head leaning against the iron bars of the door.

"Ver wife's all ya writin' to ya, ain't she?" the convict ruminated. "Oh, sure, she never misses a day," Joe brightened.

"Yeah, but she ain't at first too," Joe's cellmate remarked. "But she doesn't no more, an' I can't say 'I blames her'."

"No? Why's that?" Joe was listening idly, as he often did when his cellmate began to speculate in words. There were so many things you wanted to think about when you had the chance. The thing that struck you oddly about life behind stone and steel was the reality of it. Sometimes you wondered if he really could be Joe Lane, or whether he hadn't somehow got mixed up with somebody else.

Never before in his life had Joe considered the value of decent plumbing. And the food—well the warden did his best, but the legislature only allowed him thirty-three cents a day to feed each man, and what could you buy for that? It was a wonder that the men who had no extra money to buy fresh fruit at the prison commissary got scurvy sometimes.

Small wonder that the officers—and there were plenty of them under the new laws—muttered continuously as they stalked the corridors and made endless plans to escape. It had been different a few years ago for when the law had left them one small glimmer of hope. Perfect behavior for years might earn them a commutation. But some day, Joe was thinking, there would be a mutiny. These desperate men would fling themselves at the stone walls, and then the guards—most of them jolly fellows—would take their machine guns and shoot, and shoot to kill. But the officers wouldn't mind. They'd rather be dead. They'd kill themselves with a bunch of servants who didn't want to look yellow to the others.

Anything to get away from the unwholesome smell, the dank walls, and the roaches that crawled over your face while you were asleep and told you your coffee was at meal times!

It was all so unnecessary, Joe told himself, this breaking and degrading of human beings by surrounding them with stone walls, and then even the worst old plough horse lived more comfortably than these "cons." Some of them blamed the warden and the keepers. That was nonsense. It wasn't their fault. They did the best they could with the money they were allowed. It was the system behind them.

Didn't people realize that you could take a man and shut him up in the most luxurious Park Avenue apartment with a bunch of servants to wait on him, and he would still be severely punished? It was the fact and not the conditions of imprisonment that bit into the spirit of a man. All the added discomforts were nothing to Joe, but as necessary brutality.

"What chance has a woman got married to a 'con'?" the radio singer's cellmate was still talking. "When first camp here and there worked an 'stayed in look after her self an' th' kids. Yeah, I got two 'em. But whenever anybody found out where her husband was they'd either fire her or be sorry for her. An' that was worst—like you an' me, 'ats been takin' it onus chin an' me out tryin' to make good."

Joe came to attention, frowning. The man's words had started his brain to whirling. He found himself listening attentively.

"Then th' wife's gotta come down to th' station house an' they asks her a lotta questions they'd oughta get sock in th' nose fer," he rambled on. "For boss fin's out and yer out onna street—he all at once fin's out he's gotta cut down expenses. An' th' wife goes to work again 'til ya gets some other job. It's th' same over an' over, 'til yer pushin' up the flowers in th' cemetery."

This was a new idea to Joe. He hadn't thought of it that way before. Shocking, it was, but so horribly true. He didn't want to believe it, but he had to. Katherine, his Kitty, knocking about through the years to come with a jailbird!

And Little Pal—the kids would be yelling things at him in school everytime they wanted to tease him. It was all so hideous.

"Well, my wife's gotta divorce," the prisoner continued. "But I can't hol' that against her, either. What's th' use a waitin' for a guy 'ats gonna be an ex-con fer th' rest a his life?"

He daily received a letter from his wife to their walking about and chatting in low tones as they had been doing before he sang.

The principal keeper's voice signalled the end of their rest period. "Come on, boys, line up for the count!" His words boomed and echoed in the stone hall.

A shuffling scuffling. The clump clump of heavy soled, heavy heeled boots on cement flooring. And in a compact mass of greyness, only machine driven robots stood in the places of persons. When the blue figures of the turnkeys—"serews," they called them—stepped down the iron stairway the robots were all in a line.

A clanging of doors. The sharp clink of locks slipping into place. A quiet hush. The scuff plunger sank down onto his cot, his head in his hands. There was no use of talking. He couldn't whimper. The blinding electric light overhead defined his features; showed his every emotion to his cellmate. And in prison it never did to display even a suggestion of the white feather.

The other fellows couldn't endure a man who wasn't game. They were afraid of hysterics and outbursts, because each one, himself, was on the verge every time he had a moment to think.

"You got a letter today," Joe nodded. He raised his head, attempting a smile.

"Well, yer's a lucky stiff," came the rejoinder. "Don't know how lucky, an' ya never will, 'cause ya'll never be here for a flah th' way I am. Wouldja mind—ya know?" he questioned, raising his eyebrows and then contracting one bulging eye in what was intended for a wink.

But that wink covered many things. Behind it was pathetic wistfulness, a yearning for things that had never been and probable never would be. Joe knew what the convict meant when he asked about the daily letter and winked. He knew that for two years the man had never received a single word from the world outside. No visitors, no mail, not even the tracts that conscientious, home town persons forwarded to strayed members of their flocks. And that for two more years, until the five, or "flah," as the men called the term, would be up, he would hear nothing through his companions.

Joe pulled a letter from beneath the pillow of his bunk. He turned the white envelope about in his hands. Katherine wouldn't mind, he knew. "And so he opened out the white sheets of paper and read his wife's letter to the man who was always waiting for one that never arrived. It wasn't a very important letter. It just said the things that a brave heart pours out to a loved one. The prisoner listened, his head leaning against the iron bars of the door.

ROTARY URGED TO SUPPORT BARRIER

In a talk before the Richmond Rotary club yesterday, C. W. Schedler of Pittsburg, urged Richmond to send delegates to Martinez Thursday to participate in the formation of a permanent Bay Barrier association.

The meeting will be held in the chambers of Judge A. B. McKenzie and delegates are expected to attend from Contra Costa, Alameda, San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma and San Joaquin counties.

According to Schedler, who is head of the Industrial Water Users association of Contra Costa county, the proposed salt water barrier is the greatest industrial and agricultural need of the bay region. He outlined the barrier proposal in a comprehensive and detailed manner.

That the bay counties and San Francisco get together in a concerted fight for the project, was urged by Schedler, who pointed out that in normal years, during the spring months, the division between salt and fresh water is about Carquinez straits and that Suisun bay is filled with fresh water. During dry years and late in the summer and fall, salt water reaches further up the bay, going as far as Antioch at times and putting agricultural lands and industries located along the delta, who draw water from the river.

Heavy loss has been suffered by dock owners and shipping interests along the upper reaches of the bay, through the destructive work of tides and other salt water borers, Schedler said. This condition would be remedied by erection of the barrier.

Favors Dillon Point. Although a barrier at point San Pablo would have many advantages, he continued, the Dillon point site seems to be the most logical one for the barrier. The dam at Dillon point would cost about $45,000,000 against $70,000,000 for the one at Point San Pablo, and it would be necessary to provide a million acre feet more fresh water to fill the reservoir opposite from Mare Island navy yard would be overcome at Dillon point.

Once a definite project is outlined, Schedler said, the government must be interested in financing the project, through the state. He urged that immediate steps be taken to create a permanent organization to work out and submit definite plans for the barrier, and to fight the issue in the next legislature.

3 Interesting Plays Given By High Pupils

The pupils of Richmond Union high school last night staged one of the most elaborate entertainments that has ever been given in the Richmond Union high school auditorium. Three plays were given, with a total cast of more than 25 amateur actors. The plays were "The Managers," "The Heart of Frances," and "The Travelers." A large crowd attended, almost the entire auditorium being filled.

"The Managers" was an interesting account of two retired seamen who both wished to be masters of their homes. The old men wished to choose the husband of their niece, but she managed to manipulate the matter in a manner that was pleasant to them all. The play was written by Joseph Lincoln.

The cast of "The Managers" included Ernest Miller, Edwin Poole and Anita Chasseur. "The Heart of Frances" was a fantasy dealing with the way in which "Frances" chose between two men which one she would marry. The setting illustrated the heart of Frances and the characters in the dream illustrated the various emotions in the heart of Frances. The vision that she receives in the dream shows her which choice she should make.

The cast of "The Heart of Frances" included Loretta Lane, Vivian Vaughn, Ruth Lewis, Albert Simms, Ida Engleking, Edward Harlow, Lawrence Theis, William Van Fleet, Warren Black, Adeline Houck and Ivy Banner. "The Travelers" was a hilarious comedy from the pen of Booth Tarkington. The plot concerned a company of tourists who were stranded in an inn situated in the mountains of Sicily. The stage was darkened, and shrieks and ghostlike apparitions contributed to making the play a thriller.

The cast of "The Travelers" included: Jack McLean, Philip Johnson, Bernard Follett, Vuokko Carlson, Berna Spagnoli, William McClosky, Lorraine Nichols, Edwin Palmer, Margaret Stromberg, Darrow Sutton, Ernest Peters and Merideth Morgan. The directors of the productions were: Mrs. Nellie Pherson, Dorothy Cox, Blanche Carson, and Virginia Lee Stanton.

HARBOR FETE TO BE HELD TODAY

been erected at Tenth and Cutting guiding transient motorists to the site.

Many To Parade
The parade will be swelled in size by the many hundreds of privately owned machines. It is expected that virtually all those who are driving to the celebration in the afternoon will join in the parade, the private cars being placed in the last division. Other divisions will include a large representation of Parent Teacher association members, Girl Scouts, police and fire automobiles, decorated industrial floats, and fraternal organizations.

When the parade arrives at the terminal and disbands, the speed boat races will start in the inner harbor channel and continue for one hour. These will be spirited contests for special prizes with some of the fastest craft on San Francisco bay in competition.

Inspection To Follow
Inspection of the terminal and serving of refreshments will follow, and at 7 o'clock there will be a spectacular demonstration of water and light by the fire boat David Scannell, sent to Richmond through the courtesy of Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco.

At 8 o'clock the speaking program will open with T. M. Carlson as master of ceremonies, introducing Mayor A. L. Paulsen and P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber of commerce, to offer greetings from their respective groups. They will be followed by five minute talks from Fred D. Parr, Mrs. Mattie Chandler, E. B. Bull and W. W. Scott, each taking up a separate phase of Richmond's industrial program during the last three years. The address of the evening will be by Joseph E. Caine of Oakland, on "East Bay Harbor and Industrial Development." Caine is chairman of the harbor committee of the Oakland chamber and is well versed in east bay growth and prospects.

Yacht Parade
The illuminated yacht parade in the inner harbor will begin at 9 o'clock. During the entire evening there will be dancing and motion pictures in addition to the automobile show to interest the visitors.

J. P. Strom is chairman of the general committee which has worked out the details of the celebration. Strom said he estimates that the crowd will be in the neighborhood of 4000. The largest gathering of any kind ever held in Richmond.

POET BUILDER OF BOATS DIES

Alone, as he preferred to live, John G. "Jack" Porter, 65, picturesque Richmond waterfront character died some time Thursday night in his tumble-down shack at the foot of Thirtieth street.

And because "Jack," as he was known by rich and poor alike, preferred to be alone, except with a few select friends, he failed to seek treatment for a deep wound in his left hand inflicted by a rusty spike. This wound is believed to have resulted in blood poisoning which caused the man's death.

John Nicoli, a friend, found the body of Porter yesterday morning in his shack. Nicoli, as well as several other persons who had seen the injured hand, advised Porter to seek medical aid, but he refused. Nicoli had suffered a similar injury and had it lanced the night before and had come to Porter to advise him that he had better take care of his own injury.

Porter's life had fluctuated to all phases of life. He was a member of the original Coxey's Army, several gold rushes, had been among the first to seek the precious metal, later he turned inventor and poet and then boat builder.

Porter came here about six years ago from Trinity county, where he had become acquainted with Mayor A. L. Paulsen. Paulsen was one of many who listened to Jack spin yarns of his experiences as he worked on his inventions or built boats down at the waterfront.

Patents were held by Porter on a helicopter type of airplane and a rotary steam engine. His greatest love, however, was to build boats, one of them now lies unfinished on his rudely constructed wharf adjacent to his home.

When Jack came to Richmond he didn't think much about a regular job, although several friends offered to help him in obtaining one. He drifted down to the waterfront. For a time he lived in a tent. Then the waves washed up boards and timbers. From these he fashioned a two room shack in which he lived until his death.

The shack was followed by a well dug by hand. Then came a small wharf, a blacksmith shop to aid him in building boats. Then came other improvements, "not so modern but good enough for me," as he expressed it, until he had a small ship building plant.

Jack was never known to be in a hurry, and though did not seem to smile upon him in recent years, he led a happy and contented life with the things he loved most—boats and the sea.

Funeral arrangements are pending in the hands of Wilson and Kratzer. No relatives of the dead man are known here.

Bay Point Site Considered For New Industry

MARTINEZ, Oct. 11.—According to admissions made today by executives of the C. A. Hooper corporation, sale of 1000 acres of marsh land between Bay Point and the holdings of the Associated Oil at Avon is impending. The sale, in contemplation of a major industrial development, is scheduled to be completed within a few days.

Surveyors of both seller and purchaser of the property, are on the ground now, making surveys to determine the exact acreage and boundaries in the tract. Reclamation engineers have also been at the property.

Although the identity of the corporation for whom the property is ultimately intended is not known, rumors couple the name of the Richfield Oil company with a plan to build a bay district refinery and storage center.

The 1000 acre tract is to be purchased by Joseph Zook and associates of San Francisco. Zook is now in Los Angeles, presumably in connection with the Bay Point deal.

The tract borders Suisun Bay, where deep water is available and extends from Point Edith, adjoining the shipyards of the Pacific Coast Shipbuilding company, to the Associated Oil company's holdings on the west, and south to the Martinez Bay Point highway.

Although the Richfield Oil company has several times been connected with reports of development at Bay Point, none as yet have materialized.

While admitting negotiations for the sale that is expected to be completed within a "few days," executives of the Hooper corporation, assert that they are unaware of what the property is being purchased for, except that it is for industrial development.
